Copyright Statement

Upon submission to the Journal of Nowshera Medical College, we as authors agree to retain copyright ownership of our article. We will be permitted to freely share and distribute copies for teaching and research objectives. Should the Journal of Nowshera Medical College decide to commercially print or republish our work, authorization must be formally requested. Though allowed academic dissemination, commercial exploitation remains the purview of the publisher. For inquiries regarding permission of mass publication or profiteering reuse, the Journal of Nowshera Medical College must be engaged in discussion.

Undertaking

The undersigned acknowledge that the contributions submitted to the Journal of Nowshera Medical College must be novel insights that have not concurrently sought publication elsewhere. The editors reserve the right to suggest refinements, reject, or retract published work according to the principles of Committee on Publication Ethics. All human and animal research presented must adhere to our institutional standards and general ethical guidelines. We confirm disclosure of any relationships that could introduce bias, and identify all funding sources. While complexity arises in fully transparent reporting, our primary aim is open and honest assessment of the facts. If selected for publication, we understand charges assist in disseminating important findings to improve patient care and medical understanding worldwide. Though requirements differ somewhat between specialties and nations, our shared goal is advancing knowledge to benefit all humanity.

Charges for manuscript submission and any additional fees

Authors, both from Pakistan and other countries, must pay a processing fee upon submission of an article for the initial review procedure. Upon reaching the stage of approval, an article incurs a publication cost that is determined based on the category of the piece. Payment of the entire publication charges is a must for receiving an acceptance letter. I am prepared to remunerate the initial review charge of Rs 10,000 or USD 250 (Please choose the relevant currency). I comprehend that upon acceptance of my article, I will be required to remit the complete amount based on the category, together with any additional charges that may be imposed owing to the inclusion of supplementary illustrations or text. If I choose to retract my article after getting the acceptance letter, the copyright for my article will not be reinstated until I make a payment of 40% of the publication fee to JNMC. This payment is intended to partially compensate the costs associated with the final processing and reformatting of the journal copy.
